The Fund invests in securities that ProFund Advisors believes, in combination, should track the performance of the Index. For the year ended July 31, 2024, the Fund had an average daily statistical correlation of over 0.99 to the daily performance of the Index. For the same period, the Index had a price return of 12.29% and a volatility of 12.17%. The index performance was driven by factors such as having a substantial underweight to technology compared to the S&P 500®, which contributed to underperformance relative to the S&P 500®. Primary factors affecting Fund performance include the total return of the securities held by the Fund, expenses, transaction costs, the volatility of a Fund's index, and other miscellaneous factors.
